

Strongly oxidized, quartz-sericite-pyrite altered, flow-banded rhyolite exposed on the north side of the Granisle pit along the uppermost bench. Similar rhyolitic intrusions occur elsewhere on the Newman Peninsula and are believed to be part of the Eocene Babine intrusive suite (Ebr)

676192