

Columnar-jointed hornblende-biotite-feldspar porphyry of the Eocene Newman volcanics (ENv) exposed on the west shore of the Newman Peninsula. These rocks, which occur near the base of the Newman succession, are believed to be the extrusive equivalent of the Babine intrusions which host important porphyry Cu-Au deposits.

676205