Dear Bob:

Thank you for your note and enclosed reading material regarding the Lithoprobe program and the location of King Jack Resources property. You're absolutely right--sutures are great targets, obviously because they open up channelways for mineralizing solutions to follow. However, the mineralizing solutions need to be present and it sure looks like there was no shortage of such fluids in the present Nelson area.

Good luck with your exploration and research reading and I look forward to hearing more about King Jack Resources.

Yours sincerely,

Tom Schroeter, P.Eng.

P.S. I'm returning your original material.
