A photograph of a steep, rocky mountain slope. The rock is light brown and tan, with some green vegetation growing on the right side. The sky is a clear, deep blue. Two locations on the rock face are marked with the handwritten text "DRILL SITES" in black ink. The first location is on the left side, and the second is on the right side, lower down. There are also some small, faint markings on the rock face, possibly indicating specific drill sites.
